KANCO was represented by the Executive Director, Allan Ragi and the Campaigns Manager Rahab Mwaniki.

The Union conference will host discussions, presentations and debates focusing on what is needed to ensure commitments become action, and that lifesaving targets are met. The discussion span beyond TB, Looking at lung health holistically and the threats including TB, air pollution, tobacco and many more, emergencies that science, leadership and action needs to meet head on.

India, which is hosted the conference paradoxically it is the country with the highest TB burden, but at the same time has set the most ambitious targets to eliminate TB by 2025.

For Kenya this conference comes when there is as strong push for Universal Health Coverage (UHC) and amid effort to profile investment in people centered TB services as important building blocks for realization of UHC.

The stakeholders forum took place on the 24th October 2019 at the Intercontinental hotel Nairobi Kenya. The meeting brought together the Ministry of Health, CSOs representatives and Member of Parliament who would be attending the SUN Global Gathering, at Kathmandu, Nepal.

Addressing the forum the SUN coordinator Edgar Okoth, reiterated on the importance of increased political commitment, investment in terms of financial and resource allocation to nutrition and policy coherence. ‘There is need to strengthen multi-stakeholder engagement for nutrition, be proactive in tracking commitments to nutrition made at the national and Global levels and continue to engage towards securing political and financial commitments made for nutrition, he stated.

Navneet Meetal-SUN Business Network, echoed these sentiments saying as a business community committed to enhancing nutrition outcomes their ask to the government through the MPs was for the ‘MPs to advocate for commitment from large corporate entities and similar stakeholders towards supporting nutrition strengthening in the country’.

Allan Ragi-Executive Director, KANCO making his remarks, commended the representation of the Members of Parliament saying their Leadership was critical to realizing sustainable investments for nutrition. He reiterated on the importance of linking nutrition and the disease burden in the country and the ripple effect this has on development.
He stated that “2025 will see Kenya importing roughly 52% of its food from other countries and in the next few years, food prices in Kenya will become the second highest globally and therefore we must start the pertinent discussion of what this means in terms of development.’

Stating what needs to be done Mr. Ragi observed, ‘The governments needs to make investment for nutrition a priority, with a government led cultural shift in agriculture, change in policy and in this journey everybody must be involved’

Betty Samburu—Ministry of Health stated that Kenya faces huge disparities in stunting and is generally food insecure. ‘We must realize that the effects of failure to invest in the first 1000 days window results are seen 40 years later. We must therefore embrace nutrition specific and nutrition sensitive actions towards eliminating malnutrition in all its forms.’ She further noted that the biggest challenge in Kenya is working in silos where the nutrition stakeholders actions are largely uncoordinated. She impressed on the need for multi-stakeholder collaboration, investment in strong monitoring and evaluation systems and better coordination at all levels.

Gladys Mugambi—SUN, Ministry of Health Focal Point Person, briefed the members on the gathering and the structure. She mentioned that it was the first time Members of Parliament from Kenya would be attending thus the forum to consolidate a common country portion ahead of the deliberations. She added that the gathering provides an ideal platform to share, learn, track progress as well as strengthen partnerships and commitments for nutrition.

Benjamin Magut, Kenya National Assembly representative, thanked the organizers for the forum and underscored the importance of such engagements to improve nutrition outcomes. He underscored that information’s sharing with the parliamentarian is critical in strengthening the political good will and investment for nutrition, saying nutrition is not well understood. Through his office he committed to organize a forum between the CSOs and the MPs after the SUN Global gathering to learn and share more with the legislators on nutrition and its alignment to the greater UHC agenda, the gaps, challenges and linkage to development.
